COVER LETTER

- Creating a Worthwhile Software Safety Brand -

Having had a couple of meetings inside the industry, looks like the misunderstanding is with having access to the ready code and the industry knowledge to not step over toes and make relationships on the fly to better service the safety and insure the viability of the product. This has been the aim of the research year conducted under 2 of my limited liability corporations.

- Though Business as Usual, an Avid Parallel Worker -

Internship offers aside, there looks to be a space in the future, perhaps in the next couple of years, where the income and vouch provided by an internship could assist me from involuntarily dropping the ball. Hopefully my coding, work, business, and industry experience can be of assistance to a few, if not all of you.
